Programme of Study Description

The purpose of the MA "Cultural Policy and Development" is the understanding of what defines cultural heritage; the conditions of contemporary cultural production; as well as the utilization and promotion of both as tools for the development and management of the multifaceted problems faced by contemporary societies.

Understanding the sources of the own cultural memory and identity, as well as becoming familiar with those of other countries and people, are fundamental prerequisites for local economic and social development, as well as for ensuring constructive communication and cooperation with other countries and people. The pursuit of a "European identity" proves to be a process in continuous evolution and differentiation that requires interaction at social, political, and cultural levels, both among EU member states and with people and cultures outside the Community. The MA in Cultural Policy and Development emphasizes the interaction between culture and politics, and provides tools for understanding it at the local and EU levels, as well as globally.

Understanding the significance and role of cultural heritage and bringing cultural past to the present through its creative utilization can generate innovation, development, new cultural "products," and coordinated cultural policy.

The MA "Cultural Policy and Development" (ΠΠΑ), through careful planning of thematic units of theoretical and practical knowledge, provides comprehensive scientific knowledge that will enable its graduates to understand the deeper structures and causes of contemporary social, economic, and political problems faced by EU member states.

The MA in Cultural Policy and Development aims to train highly skilled professionals in the field of culture, tourism, politics, and creative industries who will significantly contribute to the creation of social well-being from any position they hold in local or international organizations, institutions, networks, and collaborations.
